Who is this fund suitable for?

This fund is suitable for unit holders who wish to have long-term exposure to the Nordic stock markets.

The fund's investment mandate and strategy

The fund invests in companies that are listed in, or have their head offices or origins in, Norway, Sweden, Finland or Denmark. At least 80% of the fund's total assets are to be invested in equity instruments. Up to 10% of the fund's total assets may be invested in unlisted financial instruments that comply with the fund's investment universe.

The fund is normally fully invested in shares, but can have money on deposit in banks or invested in money-market instruments. According to their articles of association, the ODIN funds may enter into derivatives agreements. The fund does not currently use derivatives.

All of ODIN's equity mutual funds are actively managed. ODIN's managers invest freely, within the frameworks of their mandates, in what they believe to be good, undervalued companies. The funds are not tracker funds – no emphasis is placed on the companies' size or weighting in the market indices. Investment decisions are made on the basis of independent, thorough company analyses that use information from a number of different sources, including visits to the companies and talks with the companies' managements. ODIN's managers look for good, undervalued companies that have positive attitudes to such things as ethics. In order to improve the value creation of and/or realize the value in the companies in which the funds are invested, ODIN's managers also spend time exercising shareholder rights on behalf of the funds' unit holders.

Goal

The respective funds' goal is to achieve a long-term rate of return that is better than the fund's benchmark.

Benchmark index

The fund's benchmark index is VINX Benchmark Cap NOK NI. The benchmark index is adjusted for dividends.

Performance

The graphs below show the historical performance of the fund in Euro. The performance include reinvested dividends that the fund receives on its investments. All the costs debited to the fund have been deducted.

Past performance is no guarantee for future performance. The future performance will depend, among other things, on movements in the market, the manager's skill, the fund's level of risk and the management fee. The value of the fund may decline as a result of a fall in share prices. Long term performance is not adjusted for inflation.

The performance may vary considerably during the year. The individual unit holder's loss or gain will therefore depend on the exact date when the units are bought and sold.

Risk

Investments in equity mutual funds always involve a certain risk. In this context risk means fluctuations in the fund's unit value (price volatility). Note that equity mutual funds are a long-term investment alternative - we recommend a minimum investment period of five years. A shorter investment period increases the risk of loss, while an investment horizon of more than five years reduces the risk of loss.

The fund has a medium risk profile since it invests in several markets. The fact that the fund is not a tracker fund means that the fund's performance may deviate from the benchmark index performance.

There is no guarantee for investments in mutual equity funds like that provided by the Norwegian Guarantee Schemes Act (Act. no. 75 of 6 December 1997) for deposits of up to NOK 2 million in Norwegian banks.

Relative gain and relative loss

Risk goals over the past five years (NOK):	Relative gain	Relative loss
ODIN Norden	100%	110%

Relative gains and relative losses show the fund's risk-adjusted yield, as a measurement of whether the unit holders are paid for the risk taken by the fund. As an active equity fund manager, it is natural to measure whether the fund does better than the market (the benchmark index) – when the market is rising and when the market is falling.

When the market is rising, the fund's yield is measured against the market's yield. A relative gain equal to 100 tells us that the fund is producing the same yield as the rising market. A value of more than 100, therefore, means that the fund is rising by more than the rising market.

The opposite of this is a relative loss, which says how much the fund is falling in value when the market is falling. A relative loss equal to 100 means that the fund is falling by the same as the market, while a relative loss of less than 100 means that the fund is falling by less than the falling market.

Subscription (purchase)/redemption (sale)

Fund units may be subscribed for or redeemed by applying via fax, post or an electronic service (approved by ODIN Forvaltning AS) to ODIN Forvaltning AS or brokers of ODIN's funds. The minimum subscription amount is NOK 3 000 in the case of a one-off purchase or NOK 300 if a monthly savings agreement is established.

The funds' basic currency is NOK. The funds convert payments in foreign currencies into NOK at the unit holder's expense and exchange rate risk.

Payment for redeemed units is made in NOK. This amount may be converted into another currency in the receiving bank at the unit holder's expense and exchange rate risk.

ODIN Forvaltning is not responsible for any loss or harm that its clients suffer in connection with the determination of the unit price and which is caused by circumstances outside the company's control, such as power cuts, strikes, errors in computer processing systems or telecommunications networks or errors committed by parties used by the company to fulfill its obligations under a contract.

According to the Norwegian Consumer Protection (Distance Selling) Act of 21 December 2000, no cooling-off period applies to the purchase of units in mutual funds. Reference is made to the individual fund's complete prospectus for the other information requirements stipulated by this Act.
